REPORT.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY,
ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
TRENTON, November 30, 1867.

*To His Excellency Marcus L. Ward,
Governor, and Commander-in-Chief:*

SIR—I have the honor to submit the following report of this department for the year 1867:

On the resignation of Brevet Major General Robert F. Stockton, I was commissioned by you to this office, April 12, 1867, and entered upon its duties the same date. From that time until the present I have given it my undivided personal attention and efforts. Assisted, as I have been, by an efficient clerical force, I cannot fail now to applaud them for their conscientious discharge of duty, for the accuracy and promptness with which they have followed my directions.

The routine office business has been despatched with great celerity. During the past year several thousand letters have been received, the desired information collected and proper endorsements made. Many statements have also been compiled for the several bureaus of the War Department. The office of pensions has demanded of us almost daily, complete records of the military history of each applicant from this State.

It is my duty to call your attention to the obvious necessity of providing a fire-proof room for the invaluable statistics which this office contains. The destruction of its records would be an incalculable loss and could not fail to cause much distress among those affected by the late war.

Since the last official report there have been fourteen thousand six hundred and fifteen (14,615) copies of the "Honorable Testimonial" issued, as ordered by the Legislature of 1866. Applications are made at the rate of about forty per diem.

The mortuary and burial rolls furnished by the War Department have been carefully compared, revised and corrected. In each case accurate rolls have been made and placed on file. I regret to state that scarcely a single name is correctly reported. It is either misspelled, wrong rank, company, regiment and date of death; and even then frequently credited to the soldiers of another State. The Quartermaster's Department of the Government following these official lists have had head-boards placed at the graves of these men and the result is apparent. Of the graves at Antietam and Gettysburg I have personal knowledge that not one in ten is correct. This neglect should be remedied now. And I would suggest that some careful and efficient man be appointed to visit the National Cemeteries alluded to, as well as those at Alexandria, Hampton, Danville, Va., Annapolis, Md., Andersonville, Ga., &c., and have the errors corrected to which I allude.

An accurate list of the martyred dead in the prisons of the South has also been carefully compiled. This has been prepared from official rolls furnished, as before, from the Department at Washington, from information given by surgeons in the rebel army, from lists surreptitiously copied from rosters in the office of these prisons, and from diaries of returned prisoners. A large amount of valuable information has thus been obtained, as to the date of death, disease and place of burial. This method has now been entirely exhausted, yet we are daily tracing men, reported "missing in action," and published as of the same company and regiment of N. Y., N. H., or N. C. troops. By comparing sworn statements of comrades, testimony of nurses, idem sonans, and obtaining the certificate of the Adjutant General of N. Y., &c., that no man by that name ever belonged to the regiment of volunteers from that State as indicated, we are enabled to gather a complete and faultless record of the soldier. The labor incident thereto is apparent, but our success thus far warrants the exertion.

There is still a large amount of State pay unsettled, especially to naval volunteers and colored troops. The paying of these claims is greatly retarded, necessitating, as it does, application in each case to the records of the Provost Marshal General's Department for date of muster in, place and time of credit and discharge. Provost Marshals of districts in this State during the war were required to make at least four copies of their muster-in rolls to be transmitted to the Commandant of Rendezvous, the Acting Provost Marshal General of N. J., the Provost Marshal General of U. S., and the Adjutant General of the Army. All these are known now to be in the custody of the War Department. One copy on file in this office would have been of incalculable value.

By your direction a roster of New Jersey officers and enlisted men in the volunteer organizations of this State, in the Staff

Corps of the Army, in the U. S. Navy, miscellaneous organizations and U. S. colored troops is being prepared. This collection approaches completion, delayed however by the want of the date of discharge of recruits, substitutes and drafted men. All of these men were forwarded from the draft rendezvous at Trenton to the depot at Alexandria, Va., and many of them, although assigned to the various regiments from this State, failed to reach them. They stand "unaccounted for" on our books. The Commandant of Depot, neglecting to send us a record of their desertion or death, the Mustering-out officer of their discharge and the War Department refusing now to give this information in detail, causes us great embarrassment. During the rebellion it was declared impolitic to furnish any of the States with the bi-monthly musters and this being the only official history of soldiers in the early stages of the war, the record will necessarily be lost.

Since the war, it has been the apparent determination of Congress to pass at an early day a law to reorganize the militia of the country on a permanent, efficient and uniform status. Should such an act be passed it must result in giving this State an effective force for military service, prepared for any emergency. As our State law now stands, it presents an incongruous mass of details—much that is impracticable, very conflicting, superfluous, inadequate. The law of 1865 is nullified, impaired and in part improved by the specialities of a State guard law and a rifle corps act. The conflicting points in each law defy the most astute to understand or the most zealous to make operative. The militia law informs us that each company of infantry must consist of "not more than sixty-four (64) and not less than twenty-five (25) privates;" that companies of riflemen may be formed consisting of "not more than one hundred (100) and not less than fifty (50) privates, four (4) commissioned and ten (10) non-commissioned officers;" the State guard law requires that no company shall be paid unless it reports for duty "at least fifty (50) uniformed men exclusive of officers;" the rifle corps act demands that each company claiming compensation shall number "at least thirty uniformed men." It were easy to show many other gross inconsistencies.

The nearer our system can be made to conform to the basis of the regular army code, assimilating in rank, strength and in form, the more reliable will it become. Indeed, we need a law simply of organization, and not one replete with minor rules and regulations. These rules for the government of the militia had far better be issued in general orders from the Commander-in-Chief, than be so hampered by the stability of law. Exigencies often demand an immediate change in details, a proceeding quite easy in the way I have indicated, of course otherwise impossible. The long experience and complete knowledge of my predecessor of the militia laws of our State caused him to say on his last report that "the difficulty arises from the fact there is too much law." I reiterate his remark.

I would suggest an "improvement to advance the discipline and benefit the militia" by the creation of an examining board to inquire, when necessary, into the military capacity and moral fitness of officers. On the recommendation of said board let the commission of the officer be annulled or let him be retired by your order. This would soon rid the service of incompetent and useless officers.

Inducements, such as suitable rewards, exemptions and compensations, should be held out by the State to encourage enlistments and for the strict and faithful performance of military duty. A reasonable amount of service should be required and penalties for its non-performance should be prompt and sure.

We need, also, power to enforce discipline and protect the property of the State. Now, if any man offends, he is expelled—just what he desires, and we pay a premium for misconduct. Although the law says he shall be "held for the full term of seven years" his officers, not being invested with the power, find it impossible to hold him.

The militia of this State would be greatly benefitted if property now exempt by law from execution should be declared not exempt from militia fines. Then, fines for absents from drills, secreting or disposing of uniforms, arms and accoutrements, could be imposed and collected. Authority ought also be given to courts martial in cases of repeated and long-continued mutinous conduct and defiance of their power to imprison. These suggestions constitute the secrets of the efficiency of some of the organizations of other States.

In lieu of the present large expenditure of funds of the State for drills, parades, uniforms and armory rents, I would recommend that a certain stipulated sum be given to each independent company, to each battalion or regiment, according to their numerical strength and the amount of duty performed. This fund, guarded by the sworn returns and vouchers of the paymaster, would, if judiciously expended, support each organization in a suitable manner.

The new tactics, prepared by General Upton, has not as yet been officially ordered to be used in this State. A sufficient number of copies thereof should be immediately purchased, and the work authorized.

The rifle corps has attained considerable discipline, and is an efficient organization. The commanding officers of its various regiments and battalions manifest a proper spirit in urging the selection of competent line officers. For the present roster of this command, you are referred to Exhibit A; and for its strength, as shown in the annual inspection, to Exhibit C.

The veteran regiment, Newark brigade, deserves special mention. Each man in the organization is fully conversant with every duty of the soldier. The regiment has thus attained a drill so accurate that both its commandant and the State should feel a pride therein, and foster it in every way practicable.

A great effort has been made by the general commanding the Hudson brigade to reorganize his command, so fearfully depleted and disorganized by recruiting during the war. With these exceptions, the companies of infantry and cavalry, and the batteries of artillery, receive little or no encouragement from the officers of the brigade in "whose bounds the organizations rendezvous." It is only with great difficulty that their inspection returns have been obtained, and these mostly by direct orders from this office. I refer you for a list of the officers of the active militia to Exhibit B, and for the inspection thereof to Exhibit D.

The present strength of the enrolled militia of the State, uniformed and not uniformed, is:

Commissioned officers in rifle corps,	143
Commissioned officers in active militia,	81
	—	224
Enlisted men in rifle corps	2,177
Enlisted men in active militia,	902
	—	3,079
Total,		3,303

All this discordant force needs consolidation. This assertion, without argument, is patent to every one. I earnestly hope you will call the attention of the Legislature to its apparent necessity.

The annual report of the assistant adjutant general, chief of enrolling and drafting, has been received. Exhibit E shows the number and approximate estimate "of white male persons between the ages of eighteen (18) and forty-five (45) years, who are liable to perform military duty." This constitutes the reserve militia of the State.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

WILLIAM S. STRYKER,
Adjutant General of New Jersey.
